

Making Connections Response to "Gaming Night IN Canada"

I think the main idea of this text is that e-sports is rapidly getting popular and e-sports are much like physical sports. An event that is similar to the Cyber Gamer is the Minecon which players of the game Minecraft gather around in one place. A personal connection that I can make is when I plan my time for homework, chores and entertainment just like how Robert manages his time for school, work and practice. A sport that is much like gaming is basketball, because you need a good hand-eye coordination for gaming and you also need a good hand-eye coordination for basketball.

Try, I have also experienced as a stem alternative.

Elaborate on this event, what do you attribute to it?

How is the competition similar to the main idea in the text?

Feedback

You need much more textual support to illustrate the text's main idea as well as more points in your own connections to show how ideas are parallel or dissimilar.

What did you learn in the end?

Perhaps, elaborate on the benefits of living a balanced life.

How was this an advantage for Robert Tyndale?
How does it help him advance in his e-sports career?